JEFF HOYE TO HEAD HR CONSULTING GROUP

Sacramento, CA – CPS Human Resource Services recently named Jeff Hoyer the managing director of its consulting services west division. Hoyer will be guiding the division through a key unification of its testing and consulting units as well as strengthening its relationships with public sector clients throughout the western states.

“Helping to manage CPS’ customer-driven consulting organization will be a great responsibility,” Hoyer said. “I’m looking forward to launching initiatives that will solidify our competitive advantage.”

Prior to joining CPS, Hoyer was the founder of The Baobab Group, a consulting firm serving Fortune 500 clients globally through core process improvement strategies. A sample of his key successes include slashing service delivery time by up to 75% for T-Mobile and spearheading a system-wide leadership and organizational development program for Blue Cross Blue Shield. Other past clients include Ford Motor Company, Kaiser Permanente and the US Army-War Games

Hoyer will be making design, strategic position and operation decisions to ensure the long-term viability of the consulting services west division and situate the organization for future growth. In addition, he will serve as a member of the CPS management team.
